Good condition

The compact Twiek 6 Bluetooth speaker from Audiovox, which is compatible with smartphones and other similar devices, is available in three different colours. We put the small jack-of-all-trades to the test.

Today, owners of tablets and smartphones have continuous access to their music collection wherever they are. Many users turn to an active compact speaker to enhance their listening experience. This is all well and good if these speakers emit audio signals wirelessly, feature a high performance battery which allows prolonged operation and if they provide the necessary power to recharge the device. The compact Twiek 6 from Audiovox offers all of this and also generates a balanced sound via its two 40 mm broadband speakers with additional passive cone. A volume controller and hands-free button are located on the device, which enable the Twiek 6 to be operated very easily. Of course, sound systems can also be connected to the speaker via the traditional 3.5 mm jack. The battery lasted a good 20 hours in our practical test when operated at low volume.

In short

The Twiek 6 wireless stereo speaker from Audiovox features an excellent configuration and offers an optimum sound quality - all packaged in a chic housing for just €99.
